He writes, "No one really believes that a rabbit materializes out of a magician's hat just because they see it with their own eyes. In this life, seeing is not always believing. But Jesus tells us that just the opposite is true with respect to His kingdom. Believing is always seeing through the One who died to restore our sight. Through His work on the cross, Jesus not only forgives and heals us, but enables us to follow Him with clear vision, praising the Father and telling others of grace we have been shown."
